Struggling to fit reading for fun into your life?

Did you know you can read an outstanding novel in a mere five hours, or less?

To Kill a Mockingbird can be read in 5.51 hours. The Kite Runner has a reading time of only 5.95 hours.

How do we know? Well, someone figured out that the average person reads at a speed of approximately 300 words a minute. If you multiply this average reading time by the book's word count, that will give you reading time.

So, no excuses. Here are some other, wonderful novels that can be enjoyed in less time than it takes to sit through two (sometimes not-so-great) movies.

The Glass Menagerie	1.15 hours
The Great Gatsby	2.62 hours
Brave New World	3.54 hours
Frankenstein	4.19 hours
Age of Innocence	5.62 hours

On the other hand, if you're one of those people who skips ahead to the ending, you can cut the time down to practically nothing. But what's the fun in that?

Hunting Camp 52
by John M. Hanson

Anyone living in the upper Midwest is related to, friends with, or otherwise prey to tall tales about "da deer camp." Some of the stories are even true.

Hunting Camp 52 is a fond tribute to five hunters and nearly 60 years in the shack they built in the woods of Wisconsin.

It's not too early to start your holiday gift shopping.

Five Days Left by Julie Lawson Timmer

Mara and Scott are both dying. One, physically, the other emotionally. They are tied together through a support group and they never actually meet. Laugh, cry and experience the heart wrenching decisions they both have to make in their "last five days". This one caught me by surprise! A powerful, gut wrenching debut from Julie Lawson Timmer.
